

An Exciting Step After Graduation

I want to devote my first year out of college to helping thousands of people rethink their views on abortion. Will you help?

Ever since I was a child just beginning to grasp the terrible facts about abortion, I felt that God was placing this issue strongly on my heart. That sense of calling hasn't gone away—it's grown through high school and especially throughout college, where my opportunities to serve have blossomed through the Wheaton College pro-life club.

Now it seems God has given me an opportunity to really focus on it through an internship with Justice For All (JFA), an organization whose mission is to "train thousands to make abortion unthinkable for millions, one person at a time." I want to devote significant time to making an impact and becoming strengthened in my knowledge and experience so that I can be more effective wherever else my pro-life efforts lead throughout the rest of my life.

During my one-year internship with Justice For All, I will be improving my skills in creating dialogue about abortion and teaching others to do the same. I will be assisting with outreach programs and helping to change minds and hearts through intentional interactions on college campuses and other venues across the country.

JFA's approach has always impressed me as being a very Christ-like one in dealing with this difficult

Details of my year-long internship:

- I'll grow in my ability to communicate with others on a personal level through outreaches.
- I'll grow as a speaker in the JFA Trainer Certification program.
- I'll assist JFA staff members with preparation for future seminars and outreach events.
- I'll participate as a mentor and trainer at 15-20 JFA seminars.
- I'll help the JFA staff expand their influence around Kansas and Oklahoma.

issue. I've always been able to argue, but JFA's method allows me to put forth a sound argument while intentionally caring for the person I'm talking to as well. It uses the two-fold strength of grace and truth in an area that can so easily be full of hatred and misconceptions.

I believe JFA's approach can change minds and hearts, and I want to be a part of the change JFA is creating for the next generation. I saw this change at work when I went on a one-week mission trip with JFA two years ago. That short trip was so grounding and helpful that I can't even imagine how much I'll learn and accomplish during a whole year.

I cannot take this step on my own. As a Justice For All intern, I'm responsible to raise my own support, and my goal is $2,800 per month for this next year. Please consider partnering with me.

The enclosed pages include further information about JFA and directions for donating towards my support. Whether or not you can support me in this, I would always appreciate your prayers!

I plan on contacting you within a week to see if you are interested in joining with me to help further this important mission.

Blessings,
