

On The Road

Update from Jacob Burow - April 2014

Dear Friends,

This is just a quick update to let you know that I am working hard and doing well! I want to give you a quick sketch of what I've been up to recently, and ask you to pray for some people I've mentored and talked with.

This was my mentor group at our three-day camp in Denton, Texas. They were really awesome! Pray they can use what they learned in their everyday lives.

This was my mentor group at Faith Christian High School in Arvada, Colorado. Pray these young adults are challenged to be more serious about their faith, and that they are able to make an impact with their peers concerning abortion.

I also mentored this high school group during an outreach in the snow at the University of Colorado, Colorado Springs. They were very excited to be there, and did a good job starting conversations despite the snow!

This was my mentor group from the seminar at the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs. They are all very passionate about learning to defend life in the womb. Pray that they are effective in rallying others to help them make a difference through conversing with people.

Pray especially for this man who is a Christian, but does not think that Christians should ever stop anyone from doing evil things. These include abortion, murder, rape, and genocide. I was very disturbed by what he claimed to believe. Please pray that he is convicted that Christians should actually help those being harmed, and not stand by and do nothing.

Thank you for your prayers and support, which make this work possible!

Fun fact: I've never had to shovel snow to set up a display before!
