Dear Pastor Mehlhaff,

Boy, that sounds funny. I have never heard you called anything but Dave. You and I have been running into each other for nearly 10 years now at various events around town, from OCPAC to Reclaiming Oklahoma, and now Reclaiming America. I think you've heard me speak once or twice about Justice For All (JFA). Last year I took on a full-time missionary position with JFA, and I am writing to ask for the financial support of Choctaw Road Baptist Church as a domestic missionary.

I have attached for your review an open letter I wrote explaining how I got involved with JFA. As you may recall, JFA is a non-profit educational organization. We teach pro-life apologetics, and we teach Christians how to turn a conversation about life into a conversation about eternal life; we are all engaged in the purest form of personal evangelism.

The work of JFA is supported through the donations of thousands of pro-life advocates across the country. Their support pays for our office, travel, equipment, and other overhead. However, each staff person is a missionary, supported by his own local support team.

As the Regional Manager in Oklahoma, I am asking Choctaw Road to consider supporting me. I am currently supported monthly by fifty-five families and three churches, one of those being Fairview Baptist in Edmond, where our friend Paul Blair pastors. I have attached two letters of reference and a recent newsletter which details my specific job duties.

I need $340 per month to complete my support. Would Choctaw Road be willing to sponsor $150 per month for twenty-four months?

I would be happy to give a twenty minute presentation to the leadership team or finance committee and answer your questions in person at your convenience. I am also available by phone or email.

Sincerely yours,

John Michener
