Dear Dan,

I am writing to ask for the financial support of Trinity Baptist Church as a domestic missionary. You already know me through my involvement with Reclaiming Oklahoma for Christ over the years, from my time with OCPAC, and most recently from my time working with Justice For All.

While working for Oklahoma Christian University, I became acquainted with an organization called Justice For All (JFA). I was so impressed with their ministry that I invited them to speak in chapel on two occasions, and several of our students participated in mission work with JFA. I have attached for your review an open letter I wrote explaining how I got involved with JFA.

I know you are already familiar with JFA, so this is just a recap. JFA is a non-profit educational organization. We teach pro-life apologetics, and we teach Christians how to turn a conversation about life into a conversation about eternal life. While specific doctrine will vary from one volunteer to the next, we are all engaged in the purest form of personal evangelism.

JFA is not affiliated with any particular denomination, and we have no doctrinal statement of faith, although all of our staff members are Christians. The work of JFA is supported through the donations of thousands of pro-life advocates across the country. Their support pays for our office, travel, equipment, and other overhead. However, each staff person is a missionary, supported by his own personal support team.

I am asking Trinity to consider supporting me. I am currently supported monthly by forty-five families and two churches. I have attached two letters of reference and my latest newsletter which details my specific job duties.

I need $1,390 per month to complete my support. Would Trinity be willing to sponsor a portion of that for twenty-four months?

I would be happy to answer your questions in person at your convenience. I am also available by phone or email.

Sincerely yours,

John Michener
