If you could help people rethink their views about abortion, would you?

Enclosed with this newsletter is an easy way to get started. Common Ground Without Compromise is being offered for free as an eBook for a limited time. Please read the enclosed letter from Stephen Wagner very carefully and then get started because the stakes are so high.

We all need to be purposeful about looking for ways to start productive dialogue on the topic of abortion. One-on-one healthy conversation is exactly what is going to help change hearts and minds around this country and each person needs to help with their part of that huge task.

Sidewalk prayer to deter abortion, sidewalk counseling, speeches, marches, videos all must be used to bring awareness to the issue and to change hearts and minds but in the end we have to be able to come to the table with those who disagree. If we do so we could change much more than one mind. We could change whole families and towns for the truth.

"If we really believe unborn children are human beings who matter, we must be ready to engage the topic. Silence isn't neutral. Being silent takes a particular position on the value of the unborn. It says they don't deserve our best efforts to help them. If we say we're pro-life, and we don't seek to help people think clearly about abortion, can we really say we're pro-life after all?"

- Stephen Wagner, JFA Director of Training and author of Common Ground Without Compromise.

Getting excited when a prominent pro-choice advocate turns pro-life, when pro-life politicians are elected, and when statistics start leaning towards the pro-life side is not enough.

"Wagner's approach represents one of the most helpful things I have encountered in my experiences with this great social dilemma of our time." - Lynette Shaw, Pro-Choice

Getting angry when pro-lifers use violence, laws become even more unjust, or television programs slant against the pro-life position is insufficient as well.

We need to use all those current events to start conversations with those in our spheres of influence who are open to dialogue about abortion. Stephen's book will help you do just that!

The book is respected by many people on both sides of the abortion debate (see endorsement from Stephen's book at left). It pushes people towards common ground and clarity before honest disagreement so that the discussion about differences can be more civil, focused, and effective! →

It will take an eternity for the unborn to defend themselves

Common Ground Without Compromise will get your influence of on the right foot in 2011—and it's free!

This is one of the resources I recommend to students and clubs alike. It's an invaluable resource that completely changes perspectives on the topic of abortion.

The ball is now in your court. Take a shot with this challenge and make sure to pass this offer on to many others!

Prayer Requests and Praises for January 2011

- Our Arizona trip is rapidly approaching. We'll train several schools and outreach at Univ. of Arizona and Arizona St.
- Christmas break was a blessing for me and the other JFA staff. I wish I could have seen more of you but I was so blessed to be in California and to rest up for a strong 2011. I will remember the recent time with family and friends for a long time.

Defending Human Value together,

Jonathan Wagner
