Dedicated Helpers Empower JFA

For a few weeks early in 2011, we thought our University of Kansas (KU) outreach opportunity was sunk. Then we met Charles and Tricia!

My friend Bruce, a KU professor, had been working with our staff to help establish a stronger pro-life presence on his campus. We ran into several obstacles before finally learning about this young couple—eager to serve.

Charles and his wife Tricia (in black sharing the brochure) worked diligently to establish an official club that could invite our training program to their campus. Their efforts allowed us to bring a group of trained college students to engage the KU campus. This allowed their community to face the tough reality of abortion with gracious peers ready to dialogue through the whole outreach.

In the same way, our outreach to the University of Colorado at Boulder (CU), would likely have failed without the leadership and sacrifice of Tiana. Although she was a busy senior, Tiana willingly organized the pro-life club at CU, reserved space for our campus outreach, and promoted our training. She and her dedicated members (a few named Maya, Kaylynne, and Brittany are far left in the group picture) attended training, participated in the campus outreach, and encouraged their friends and ministry leaders with their commitment.

Tiana just graduated from CU but was able to pass on the leadership of the club to a grad student named Caleb whom I was able to meet during the outreach. I am impressed by Caleb's strong convictions but even more thrilled that those convictions are tempered with love. He is committed to helping the CU club grow as an active and gracious witness for truth on a very challenging campus.

In Stillwater, OK we were encouraged by the hard work of Jenny, Andrew, Trevor, Adam, and several others. They helped fill our training seminar at the local Baptist church (Eagle Heights), helped us reserve space, and connected us with opportunities to speak to their peers in ministry group settings. Trevor (left with backpack) was also a strong encouragement to me personally. He prayed for me and was an active help the whole week.
