Dear David,

Thank you for bringing the Justice For All Exhibit to the University of Minnesota Campus. I am sure that many students' ideas and lives were changed as a result.

Thank you for encouraging me to participate. My personality is one that encourages rather than confronts people and I certainly resisted being involved with the project. Your discussion of the project and the knowledge that it was the will of God that I should be his servant brought me to the training session and to the exhibit.

I was richly blessed by being involved with the students. Conversation with students was easy, stimulating and profitable to the projects goals. It was interesting to realize the relative nature of truth that students have. This came out so clearly in your long conversation with the neuro-science student over a piece of pizza. I do believe that she was changed by the discussion and will have a stronger position for the issue of life in her conversations with classmates and others.

I encourage you to continue steadfast in your work and I would look forward to being able to participate at another time.

In Christ's Name,

Paul
