No, JFA can assist you with fundraising once you are accepted for the trip. Using our methods and materials, past participants have raised an average of $600 for a one-week trip, although there are no guarantees. Any funds you raise above your participation fee will be used to reimburse your travel costs. Additional funds raised above your participation fee and travel costs will go toward the JFA Exhibit Program. All funds must be raised by May 1, 2010.

6. If I need to fundraise, how soon do I need to start the process?

Once you have submitted your Application and deposit, you will be notified within one week (no later than April 2) if you have been accepted. Upon acceptance, you are encouraged to start the fundraising process immediately by requesting a fundraising packet (deadline is April 5, 2010).
